

Heritage Log Homes partners with Sansin

Sansin is pleased to announce that Heritage Log Homes has chosen Sansin Enviro Stains to protect their family of log and timber-frame homes.

Says Sjoerd Bos, Vice-President of Sansin, "Heritage is known for their commitment to bringing the best in log home design and construction to their customers. We're thrilled that they have chosen to specify Sansin for their homes – and we know their customers will be thrilled with the performance and beauty they'll get with our Enviro Stains."

Superior performance and beauty aren't the only reasons Heritage chose Sansin to protect their homes. Heritage Log Homes is also a designated ENERGY STAR partner, which means they are committed to promoting energy-efficient products and practices that help protect the environment.

According to Dave Kubeja, TITLE, "At Heritage, we've been designing eco-friendly homes for decades and our partnership with Sansin represents our continuing commitment to a greener tomorrow. Sansin is known for their Enviro Stain line of environmentally-friendly products – designed especially for log homes – that offer a low-VOC, non-toxic alternative to traditional wood coatings."

With penetrating formulas that combine alkyd solids with water, Sansin Enviro Stains offer a proven track record in innovative wood protection. They're easy to maintain – unlike film-build coatings, they don't crack or peel. The unique water-borne technology used in Sansin Enviro Stains means that color is drawn into the wood for richer, fuller hues. And with a range of over 80 colors available, Heritage customers now have a full spectrum of beautiful colors to choose from.

Says Dave, "At Heritage, our goal is to redefine log-home lifestyles for the growing number of people who—like us—are willing to settle for nothing less than the best. Working with companies like Sansin that share our philosophy allows us to build the best log homes in North America."
